PENTER'S VINDICTIVENESS AGAINST HIS WIFE.

Court officers assisted John Carpenter to his seat yesterday in the General Sessions Court-room. He professed to be able to walk only with difficulty. He listened without apparent interest to the proceedings and kept his eyes for the most part fixed on the floor. He was closely watched, by two attendants. No witnesses were examined though the lawyers for the defence endeavored to obtain permission to call as a witness Dr. Fgan, who had examined the prisoner and who was absent on Monday on account of sickness. The Recorder refused to allow him to testify, as the taking of testimony had been closed. Christian Knears, of Knears & Blake, the prisoner's counsel, made the closing argument for the defence, reviewing the testimony to show that Carpenter was insane at the time he shot his wife. The prisoner's strange actions, his unreasonable hatred of his wife and his repeated attemps at suicide were all given as proofs of his meanity. Assistant District-Attorney Fellows made a strong argument against the prisoner, saying that his only disease was wickedness. His whole history from childhood showed that he was cruel and filled with hatred of those about him. He ill-treated his wife and children, and for years carried in his mind the deliberate purpose to kill his wife. Mr. Fellows spoke at length on the defence of insanity, saying that when a man found that he had committed a crime so openly that there was little hope of escape from its consequences, he would set up the plea of insanity and call the crime itself as the best witness of the unsoundness of his mind. The District-Attorney's fiercest invectives did not seem to attract in any way the notice of the prisoner.

Recorder Smyth, in a charge an hour and a half in length, explained to the jury the law bearing on the case. He said that to constitute murder the act must contain an element of it. Skill. If a person were unable on account of his mental condition to form an intent he could not commit murder in the first degree. PENTER'S VINDICTIVENESS AGAINST HIS WIFE.

A JEWELLERS' OUTING AT CONEY ISLAND VISITORS FROM NEW-ENGLAND ENTERTAINED AT

A wave rolled on the beach at Coney Island vesterday and splashed up the steps in front of the Hotel Brighton and smote sharply on the ear of Proprietor Lansing. With three skips and a jamp the dignified landlord reached the diamig-toom, and orders flew thick and fast. It was "Jewellers Day," and the New-York Jewellers Club, escorting the New-England Manufacturing Jewellers Association, was approaching from the Iron Steamboat Cyguas. Cappa's 7th Regiment band headed the procession and the National Band, of Providence, was comfortably sandwiched between the two associations. Grand Marshal George Fenn, keeping step with both bands, endeavored in vain to train his forces to do the same, and he swing his cane right vigorously in the breeze that ruffled his white rosette. Residents of the island, and the few visitors who had arrived for the day thought that Barnum's circus had come, or that Bunnel's Museum had broken loose. The respectable form and mice of President B. W. Ellison put such thoughs to rout, however, and people were content to stand at a respectful distance, and see the three hundred and eighty gold and dhamond handlers file into the big dining-room and be happy for two hours.

President Ellison welcomed the guests, and President Ellison welcomed the guests, and President A. S. Potter, of the New-England Manufacturing Jewellers Association, replied, followed by Theodore Parker and K. A. Johnson, "Fred" Stein made a speech which shook the dinner tables and frightened a waiter; his quartette sang an accompaniment and three champagne glasses crarked.

Mr. Woodruff was born in Westfield, N. J., in December, 1802, and while a boy went to Savannah, Ga., where he learned the mason trade. Returning to New-York he began business here, and, after the fire of 1835, constructed many of the largest buildings in the city. The Cooper Institute was built by him, also his own building in Fortystixth-st., when the street was laid out nearly thirty years ago. The Church of the Divine Paternity, built for the Rev. Dr. Chapin, was also his work. For some years he had not been engaged in active business, though his health had continued good until his last illness. GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES RELIEVED. Thousands of Government employes, especially those at work in the various Navy Yards, were made happy yesterday. Because of the neglect of Congress to pass the appropriation bills they anticipated being discharged, but their embarrassments are to be relieved. A joint resolution adopted by Congress on Monday provides that all appropriations for the necessary operations of the Government departments left unprovided for at the close fiscal year (Monday) shall be continued and made available until July 5, unless the regular appropriation bills now pending shall be enacted prior to the expiration of that date.

But for this all work would have been suspended and thousands of men would bave been thrown out of employment. At the Brooklyn Navy Yard the repairing of the flagship Tennessee and other vessels of the North Atlantic squadron would have been discontinued, also the altering of the tyrpedo-boat Intrepid into a small cruiser. The last time that any similar embarrassment was felt was in 1877, when the officers and sailors did not get their pay for April, May and June until several months afterward.

The excitement over the bases at the Madison Square Garden on Monday night had subsided yesterday, and the soreness on the part of the 7,000 people who paid $2 each or more to see a fight which did not take place had partly passed away. Among the people who take an interest in such matters, however, there is but one feeling in regard to the action of Sullivan an putting himself in such a condition as to be unable to meet Mitchell.

Sullivan was found in the afternoon in his room at the Ashland House. He was dressed as usual in a close fitting suit of black, with a Prince Albert coat, and his high hat was carefully polished. He was ready to start on the 4:30 train for Boston. His eyes were bloodshot and puffed up, and his face presented the red and bloated appearance indicative of a long debauch. His voice was husky, but he spoke coherently. This is what he said:

The papers were hard on me this morning, and I guess

DR. H. S. BAYLIS GUILTY OF THEFT.

West Thirty-first-st., in the bearding-house of Mrs. Henricita Stetson, where he occupied a line set of reems, having his office and consulting rooms on the parlor floer. Among other bearders in the house were V. K. Stevenson, jr., the well-known real estate dealer; Dr. Gates, and Captain Frank W. Vosbingh, a partner of John H. Starin. For some time complaints have been made by her loarders that different articles had been taken from their rooms in a mysterious manner. The some time complaints have been made by her loarders that different articles had been taken from their rooms in a mysterious manner. The servants were suspected, but a watch upon them failed to disclose any irregularity. Mr. Stevenson lost a dress coat, an overcoat worth $90, and some other articles. Dr. Gates tost a valuable coat, and Mrs. Stetson had a silk dress worth $70 taken from her rooms. Last Saturday Captain Vosburgh lost a handsone French clock worth $100. He went to see Detective Price, of the Twenty-minth Precinct, and asked his assistance. The detective visited the house and then paid a visit to the different pawnshops in Sixth-ave, and found the clock in one of them. Having obtained a description of the person who pledged it, he returned to Mrs. Stetson's yesterday and asked to see Dr. Baylis.

"What can I do for you, sir?" said the doctor, as he politely motioned to a chair.

"Doctor," said the officer, "I have come on an unpleasant errand. I must arrest you on a charge of taking that clock of Vosburgh's."

For a moment Dr. Baylis gazed at the detective, then he put his hand to his forehead and fell to the floor, having fainted. The officer rang for help, and restoratives were soon applied and the unfortunate man revived. The prisoner was taken to the station in West Thirtieth-st.

"Search him for weapons," said the sergeant.

"Weapons!" said the doctor, "I have no weapons. If I had you would not take me behind youder doo. I would kill myself. Yes, I am guilty."

Doctor Baylis was taken before Justice O'Reilly, at Jefferson Market Police Court, in the afternoon, and held for trial at Special Sessions in default of $1,000 bail.

INSPECTION OF TENEMENT HOUSES.

INSPECTION OF TENEMENT HOUSES.

The summer corps of assistant sanitary inspectors appointed to visit tenement houses and give free advice to the inmates during July and August received the usual instructions yesterday from Dr. Janes, the Assistant Sanitary Superintendent. The men were assigned to districts, lifty in number, whose boundaries have not been changed since last year. In a few cases physicians were assigned to the same districts as last year, but the corps for 1884 is made up largely of young graduates from medical colleges who have not done any tenement-house inspecting. Dr. Janes told them to visit the tenement houses in their districts in rotation and make inquiries for sick children. When needy persons are found sick, free advice and prescriptions are to be given, but care is to be taken not to interfere with the practice of other physicians. Health circulars and takets for free excursions furnished by the St. John's Guild will be distributed. All cases of contagious diseases will be reported promptly to the Sanitary Superintendent. Members of the corps are to make reports in writing at the end of each week, stating the number of houses inspected, the number of families and of persons in the houses, together with information about the health or sickness of the persons visited and the sanitary conditions of their rooms. Probably much of the information gathered by members of the corps during their eight weeks service will be laid before the commission recently appointed by the Legislature to inquire into the condition of tenement houses.

"I got 2 glass heer, and can't belt it."

MISS LULU HURST IN NEW-YORK. A PRIVATE EXHIBITION AT WALLACK'S BY THE "MAGNETIC" GIRL.

Theodore Moss has lately perused with much in-

Theodore Moss has lately perused with much interest the newspaper accounts of the wonderful performances of Miss Lulu Hurst, a !Southern girl, who is said to possess mysterious and almost miraculous powers. She is the daughter [of a farmer. When driving out with her father and mother about seven months ago her umbrella began to twist about in an extraordinary manner. This was the first intimation [she or her family had of the strange force which they assert is inherent in her. Its chief indication seems to be a phenomenal development of her muscular powers. It is said that she can lift chains held down by four or five strong men, bull muscular athletes about a room with one or two fingers, and do various other playful little tricks of a similar nature. She can lift weights which a Hercules might wince at, and since she has begun to give public exhibitions she has even lifted the mortgage resting on her father's farm. The result of Mr. Moss's interest was that he wrote to Miss Hurst's manager and proposed that she should give a trial performance here before a select company, which, if satisfactory, would result in an engagement at Wallack's Theatre.

On Monday the young woman, accompanied by her parents and manager, arrived in New-York and met a few friends of Mr. Moss at the theatre. There were present, among others, Mr. Moss, Charles 'and Gustave Frohman, Marshall H. Mallory, Hubert O. Thompson, Wesley Sesson and David Belasco. For an hour or more all sorts of marvellous things were done by the raw-looking country girl, The sylphilike form of Charles Frohman sped in Ariel-like flights through the air; Mr. Moss's gigantic stature availed him not before the slender arm of Miss Lulu; and the only thing which marred the afternoon's enjoyment was the unruly conduct of the numbrella, which, during its gyrations in Lulu's hand, jabbed her manager in the eye and caused his temporary retirement from the scene. In the evening the young woman and her family went to see 'May Bosson," at the Madison Square Theatre, and 'af

Adolph Adams was a witness yesterday on his own behalf in his trial for marder in the first degree. He is tall and thun, with a pumpled face. He is about twenty-two years old. His testimony was interrupted once or twice by fits of weeping. Adams is charged with killing his wife Mary, on May 20, at No. 140 Forsyth-st., a house of litrepute, of which she was an inmate. He testified as to his marriage with the deceased woman, and to their separation a year before the killing. As to the circumstances of the shooting, he said:

Lealled at the house in Forsyth-st, on the Saturday night before the shooting and stayed until Sunday afternoon. I pleaded with he to leave the house and go home to live with me. I said! Would hire rooms immediately. Sie consented, and told me to come again soon and she would leave the house with me. I called at the house with me. On cross-examination he wept bitterly when he spoke of his love for his wife. A few witnesses were examined to prove the good character of the prisoner, and his landlady, Mrs. Wittner, testified that she had seen a letter written by Mrs. Adams a few days before the shooting, in which she asked Adams to call on her soon. William F. Kintzing summed up the case on behalf of the prisoner. Judge Gildersieeve will charge the jury to-day.

They are of passionate, high-strung temperaments, quick to take offence and quick to demand a settlement in an equivalent of gore. These two fiery sons of the South were fast friends. They were "doing" New-York together. But they quarrelled. Mrs. Barroeta said something to Mrs. Figueras which the latter did not like, and Mrs. Figueras retorted with something which Mrs. Barroeta did not like. Thomas Cassidy, of No. 38½ Downing-st, returned home on Wednesday evening and found Mrs. Cassidy regaling a party of friends with beer. Among the gnests were four members of the Whaleu family. Cassidy objected to the gnests and endeavored to eject them. While doing so, Thomas Whalen, of No. 58 Maedongal-st., stabbed him twice in the left breast. Cassidy was taken to 81. Vincent's Hospital, where it was found that the lung had been penetrated, and it was thought he could not live. He made a complaint of assant and battery, to answer which the merchant, who is fifty-two years old, appeared in the Tombs Police Court yesterday. He denied assaulting Vance, maintaining that he ordered him out of his house, and when he refused to go ejected him forcibly. Justice Smith fixed bail at $300, which was furnished.
